

The Great Peshitta Codes Experiment- (95 Divine Names in Hebrew and Aramaic)

This experiment is a computerized search of The Aramaic NT (called "The Peshitta") for Divine Names and Titles found in The Hebrew Bible and in The Aramaic NT, searched by skipping letters, to see if there is a code effect. Inordinate numbers of resulting "ELS's" (Equidistant Letter Sequences) are evidence of such an effect. These are evaluated statistically with the oversight of Ed Sherman, a former fellow of Price Water House Cooper, the world's largest accounting firm.

Ed has been a professional statistician for over 20 years.

This experiment was conducted using Codefinder, the world's most sophisticated and powerful code searching software commercially available. The searches in this experiment were done with "search wrap" on, which makes the search text a cylinder by connecting the end of the text with the beginning - one continuous loop of letters searched as a string of letters without spaces between them. No other program has this feature, to my knowledge. It eliminates a certain statistical miscalculation of expected number of terms which affects the probability calculation for the final results of actual number of occurrences of ELS's.

The average ELS Z Score (Data & Calculations are shown below) is 4.85. That is a chance of 1 in 1.64 million !

The text tested in this experiment is The Peshitta Aramaic NT, an edited edition of The Critical edition, 1905 Syriac NT, based on approx. 50 manuscripts. The Codefinder edition of this Peshitta has 50 letters more than the aforementioned edition. In this electronic version, I have also found five very long codes of 25 to 88 letters long, at skips ranging from 17,000 up to about 99,000 letters skipped per each letter of the code. Every one of those codes covers the search text completely or almost completely at least one time. One of them, the longest, goes through the NT 12 times ! If one letter were added or deleted from the search text in any case, the code would not exist !

There are 95 different Hebrew and Aramaic names searched in this experiment. All are Divine Names and titles found in The Hebrew & Aramaic Scriptures of Old and New Testaments. There are more that could be searched, no doubt, but these are all the Divine names I have searched so far.

The far left column shows the skip rate for the search term (in thousands of letters skipped) which I searched with CodeFinder 1.22.

CodeFinder will search any text which has been formatted for the program for any term with two or more letters, by skipping letters in that text.

The skip number may be set in the program for different range limits - 1 to 100,000 , for example.

The third column shows the "actual" result of the search for a particular term at a certain skip range.

The fourth column shows "deviation", which is simply the difference between Expected and Actual results (with only positive values , Absolute, of that difference).

The fifth column shows the square root of the expected value. This is used in calculating a probability for the actual number of ELS's (ELS's are the words that show up as a result of a search.

The sixth column is the Standard Deviation, which is a statistic used to represent a probability for an event. It is the deviation divided by the square root of the expected number of ELS's. Another term for the Standard Deviation is the Z Score. A Z score will normally be a number less than 2.0, almost always (95% of the time) less than 3.0.

The seventh column is the Logarithm of Probability. There is a formula to determine the probability represented by a Z Score , into which I will not go here. The Log of P for 50% probability would be -0.30. A 10% Probability would be -1.0 . A 1% Prob. Has a Log of -2.0. A 0.1% (1 in 1000) has a Log of -3.0, etc.

A Z Score of 1 represents about a 1 in 10 probability; 2 is approx 1 in 100; 3 is approx. 1 in 1000. Beyond 3.0, the probabilities start to decrease exponentially. A Z Score of 4 shows a Probability of 1 in 33,000. A Z Score of 5 represents 1 in 3.5 million !

A Z Score of 6 is 1 in a billion !

The Chi Squared total is the standard method by which to calculate probability. That total for the Control text is 351 for 367 searches.

The Chi Squared total for a normal array of non coded material should be close to the number of searches, which is 367.

A Chi Squared of 351 is completely normal and indicates a non coded text for the scrambled Peshitta Control text.

Every one of the 367 Peshitta searches is matched with a Control search in a scrambled Peshitta NT text of exactly the same size.

It has the same letter frequencies and the search ranges are identical in both texts, with the same words searched in both texts.

The Z Score is the number of Standard Deviations of actual occurrences of ELS's (# occurrences of search words) from the Expected number of ELS's.

For example, the last search done above is the Aramaic word "Bra" (Son) at skips 210,000 to 230,000. That search found 2,386,353 occurrences of "Bra" by skipping 210,000 letters & up to 230,000 letters between each of the three Aramaic letters of "B" "R" "A".

The Expected number of occurrences in a normal non coded text is 2,386,353. The difference between the actual & expected is 14,891.

One standard deviation is calculated as the square root of the expected number; the Sq. Rt. of 2,386,353 is 1544.78.

Notice at the far right in the lavender shaded data that the control search found 2,388,144 of the same ELS of "Bra" in the scrambled Peshitta text. That is 1.16 Standard Deviations. 1 to 2 Standard Deviations is considered normal. The Peshitta search yielded 9.64 Standard Deviations; The Z Score is then 9.64.

A 9.64 Z Score represents a probability of one in  $10^{-20}$ , or 1 in 100,000,000,000,000,000,000.

The Average Z Score of 4.85 per ELS represents a probability of 1 in 1.64 million ! The composite probability for all the searches would be  $10^{-2204}$ .

That is one in  $10^{2204}$ , which is an outrageously small probability. One may as well say the probability is zero that these Name ELS's are unintentional.

A search of another control text involved 115 searches of a Hebrew translation of War and Peace which is the same size as The Hebrew Torah.

The Average Z Score for that text is 1.54, which is a normal Z Score.

CodeCracker, Randy Ingermanson's software gives a 4.67 Z Score for The Peshitta for skips 200-1000 for all Trigrams (3 letter Hebrew-Aramaic word patterns).

Here is an excerpt from his program's output for The Peshitta's book of Acts:

Here is the average entropy for all original skip-texts:

3.971982611245521 +/- 1.8292689913043477E-5

(Standard deviation = 0.0025869770167311597).

Here is the average entropy for all randomized texts:

3.9720339390818205 +/- 3.6307884002217256E-6

(Standard deviation = 5.134710197700477E-4).

Now let's see if the skip-texts are essentially random beyond some threshold skip. A typical threshold skip is 50 to 100.

We'll consider the result highly significant if we find a Z-score greater than 5.0, unless there is some good explanation for the high Z-score.

See my book "Who Wrote the Bible Code?" for details.

If we take a threshold of 100, the skip-texts beyond it have an average entropy of: 3.9720089972781847 +/- 3.6306546790114183E-6

Relative to the randomized texts, these skip-texts have a

Z-score of -4.8513991394761256

I show this result because the threshold of 100 skipped letters is normally the minimum recommended for computing Z Scores by Randy and which I normally observed for my experiments with Codecracker.

4.85 is exactly the value I obtained for my Divine Names experiment as I pointed out above.

Matthew has a 3.85 according to Codecracker.

3.85            1.59   6.1215

Mark has 3.63

3.63            1     3.63

Luke has 5.14

5.14           1.72   8.8408

John has 3.28

3.28           1.37   4.4936

Acts has 4.85

4.85           1.81   8.7785

4.15           1.498   31.8644

A weighted avg. for book size for these five books gives: 4.79164 Z Score

4.792 is just 1.2% less than the average from the original experiment !

So Randy Ingermanson's program seems to verify my original results as reliable.
